

3rd Annual Michigan Health Psychology Symposium

October 30, 2020
Virtual Conference

Call for Conference Contributions

Michigan Psychologists: please consider submitting an abstract describing your integrated work for this year's Symposium. We are seeking both presentations and posters. Special attention will be given to submissions with focus on healthcare experiences, disparities, or interventions with marginalized or minority populations. A presentation focused on ethical issues related to these themes would be particularly welcome. Submissions selected for oral presentations will be given a 60 minute time slot. The format for poster presentations by non-trainee psychologists is TBD.

Deadline: Please submit your 500 word abstract to MichiganHealthPsych@outlook.com by midnight August 24, 2020. Submissions should include the learning objectives for the presentation and how the presentation contributes to the professional development of the attendee (included in the word count). Please also state whether you would like to be considered for an oral presentation, poster or either one. Acceptance notifications will be sent by August 31, 2020, at which point speakers will be asked to submit additional information required for APA CE.

Call for Trainee Posters

Research Poster Competition-Video Version!

The trainee poster competition has always been an exciting part of the Michigan Health Psychology Symposium! Because this year's conference is virtual, the poster competition will be in "video" format as defined below!

- All levels of health psychology trainees (undergraduate, graduate, intern, post-docs) may submit abstracts highlighting research related to Health Psychology Integration
- Special preference for acceptance will be given to work that highlights areas of healthcare disparity (However - please do not let this dissuade you from submitting other great work if it is not related to healthcare disparity)
- Deadline: Please submit your 300 word abstract to MichiganHealthPsych@outlook.com with the title "Student Poster Submission" by midnight October 1, 2020. Those who are selected to participate will be notified via email on or before October 7, 2020.

Format: Accepted presenters will prepare a video segment (maximum 3 minutes) that provides a synopsis of the project. Within the first minute of the video the author(s), full title, and affiliation should be presented. The video should include the brief relevant background, data collection methods, results, and conclusions. Examples of video formats could be (but not limited to) – annotated power point slide, keynote presentation, or pure video recording. The accepted video submissions will be aggregated and played for the audience during the conference program. Winners will be notified after the virtual conference.
